EXPERIENCE

With over a decade of experience as an attorney, I have built a career centered on strategy, communication, problem-solving, and helping clients achieve their goals. In 2024, I transitioned from working with large law firms to entrepreneurship, launching my own estate planning practice while pursuing my passion for graphic design. Soon after, I founded Doe Designs, combining my legal expertise and business experience with creativity and visual storytelling. Today, I bring a unique perspective to every project by blending strategic thinking with thoughtful, purposeful design.

BARKING DOG BOOKSTORE

FIRST PROJECT

Barking Dog Bookstore is an independent bookstore concept built around community, discovery, and the joy of reading. The goal was to create a warm, approachable brand identity that captured the personality of a neighborhood bookstore while incorporating a playful connection to rescue dogs and reflective of the personality found within a neighborhood bookstore.

The brand system combines expressive typography, playful illustration, and cohesive print and digital applications to create a recognizable experience across customer touchpoints.

The visual direction balances the warmth of a local bookstore with a playful, modern identity inspired by storytelling, community, and canine companionship. The identity was applied across logo development, promotional materials, social media graphics, print collateral, and digital experiences to create a cohesive and memorable brand presence.

Fox in the City is a conceptual book cover design project created for fictional author Charlie Leefang. The story follows Vivica, a clever and resourceful fox who leaves her familiar forest home behind to begin a new life in Seattle. As she navigates the unfamiliar world of city living, Vivica discovers that adapting to a new environment requires creativity, confidence, and a willingness to embrace change.

The goal was to create a cover design that captures the contrast between the natural world and urban life while introducing Vivica's curious and charismatic personality. Through illustration, typography, imagery, and composition, the project explores how editorial design can establish a story's setting, tone, and character before the reader opens the book.

Death By Music is a conceptual book cover design project created for fictional author Aria Belle. The thriller follows a musician who becomes obsessed with controlling the world of music through violence, creating a story centered around obsession, identity, and the darker side of artistic ambition.

MY DEETS

My Deets is a conceptual mobile application designed to help users organize and securely access important personal information in one centralized location. The app explores how everyday details, such as financial accounts, personal records, and essential documents, can be structured into a simple and user-friendly digital experience.

The goal was to create an intuitive interface that reduces the stress of managing scattered information while providing users with a clear system for storing, reviewing, and updating their personal data.

The visual direction combines a clean interface, approachable typography, and color-coded categories to make information easier to navigate and understand. Rounded shapes, organized layouts, and consistent component design create a friendly experience while maintaining the structure needed for managing sensitive personal details.

The project focused on developing a complete mobile design system, including navigation, category organization, and detailed information screens. High-fidelity prototypes were created in Figma to demonstrate how the app functions as a cohesive product from initial entry through everyday use.

FIFTH PROJECT

The visual direction balances professionalism and approachability through refined typography, structured layouts, and a modern editorial style. The identity was designed to create confidence while making complex estate planning concepts easier for clients to understand.

Strategic Estate Planning is a boutique estate planning law firm brand created to transform a complex legal process into a clear and approachable client experience. Inspired by the idea of estate planning as strategic puzzle solving, the brand reflects the careful organization, planning, and personalized guidance required to protect a client's goals during life and after death.

The project included the development of a complete visual identity system across client communications, marketing materials, print applications, and a customized website experience designed to communicate trust, expertise, and thoughtful planning.
